Profile

UC Davis and the draft

A centre-back born in the United States to Kenyan parents who made All-Big West first team at UC Davis in 2017 and 2019 and went 18th overall to Minnesota United in the 2021 MLS SuperDraft.

Three countries

Sacramento Republic, MNUFC2, Orlando City B, Hougang United in the Singapore Premier League and Indy Eleven followed — 122 senior appearances and 12 goals.

Choosing Kenya

With an American career open to him, he chose to represent Kenya, and he runs the Keep It Pushin' programme for young players.

Cup and continental record

NCAA tournament football with UC Davis, then US Open Cup and USL Championship play-off football in the United States and Singapore Cup football with Hougang United.

Managers he played under

Dwayne Shaffer coached him at UC Davis, and Adrian Heath was head coach at Minnesota United when they drafted him 18th overall in 2021.

Did you know

A first-team all-conference defender who chose Kenya

Kibunguchy was born in the United States to Kenyan parents, made All-Big West first team at UC Davis in 2017 and 2019, and went 18th overall to Minnesota United in the 2021 MLS SuperDraft. He has since played in MLS, the USL and the Singapore Premier League with Hougang United — and, with an American career open to him, chose to represent Kenya. That decision is the diaspora pathway working in the direction this plan needs it to.

He went to Singapore to get back into a Kenya shirt

After Minnesota, Sacramento Republic and Orlando City B, he moved in 2025 to Hougang United in the Singapore Premier League, making 24 appearances and scoring three goals, and said openly that he was using it as a stepping stone towards the national team. In July 2026 he signed for Indy Eleven in the USL Championship. Four leagues on two continents, all of it aimed at one shirt.
